Welcome to online learning! Hoping everyone is well and taking good care of themselves. This will be an interesting adventure in learning. Please be patient as we work out any technical kinks and most importantly do whatever you all need to do to stay well.

Students will be working through Google Classroom on assignments related to the novel, BOY, Tales of Childhood by Roald Dahl. Each child that was in attendance on the last day before spring break was given a copy of the book. If your child does not have one, here are some websites where they can listen to the story.
Roald Dahl: Boy READ ALOUD

Boy by Roald Dahl, read by Dan Stevens by PRH Audio on SoundCloud - Hear the world's sounds (READ ALOUD)

Assignments in google classroom may involve either making a flipgrid or writing through a google doc.

Hello everyone!! I hope you are all well and doing your best to keep your emotional well being a top priority. This is an unprecedented time in my and your lives and we will do our best to continue to learn and stay connected. I have been in contact with my teaching team and the math team as well as administration and we are working hard to provide consistency for student learning and ease for families. The main format we will use is Google Classroom and each student should be enrolled in a class. If you are not enrolled in a class or need to switch to a different class based upon a recent schedule change, I have included the codes.
